

The Magic of the Woods

The acrobat Acara Bat goes into the woods looking for the circus because she was in an act that night. Suddenly she hears roaring. She looks around and sees nothing. When the acrobat turns around she finds a humongous, magical, fire-breathing dragon! She feels frightened, and the dragon seems to notice. The dragon tries to show Acara that she is nice. When Acara stops worrying the dragon and her become friends. The dragon shows Acara the natural resources that can help her survive.

When Acara and her dragon are taking a walk they walk next to the bottom of a huge cliff. They see a blizzard of magic swarm around them. When it finally ends they see in front of them a gigantic, mutant, rock giant. It tried to smash Acara and the dragon but the dragon stops the punch before it can harm either of them. That is when the battle began.

The dragon tackled the rock giant and it fell into pieces, but this wasn't the end. The rock giant reassembled magically and punched the dragon. The dragon fell to the ground, but got up quickly. Acara got a really sharp stick and started hitting the rock giant till she finally tripped it. The dragon pounced and started breathing fire over the rock giant. That is when the giant finally died.

Then the dragon lowered itself very weary and tired. Acara thanked the dragon for saving her. The dragon closed its eyes and died. Acara cried wanting it to come back. Acara decided to keep living in the woods to keep living in the ways of the dragon. Acara lived in the woods for the rest of her life, but now and then she would go back to civilization. One day Acara found a nest of dragon eggs and found out they were from her dragon and raised them for her.

The end.